Delmar's History

==Delmar

Located midway between Halifax and Enfield along the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, the community known today as Delmar initially took shape in 1905 when a consortium of eight

African Americans organized by Joe Silver acquired the two-thousand-acre "Pomery" tract of land from the Norfleet family. Containing significant timber resources, this tract, located just west of the railroad and Marsh Swamp, was purchased for $10,000 over a ten-year period. In addition to Silver, the original investors were half-brothers Elijah and Dudley Jones, Robert Copeland, G. Jackson Scott, Ed Scott, Willie Jones, and Robert Jones. Each investor received a portion of the property, averaging approximately two hundred acres, on which to develop a farm.

Generation 3 (con't)

An evangelist preacher, Joe Silver led the farm cooperative, collaborating with each member to help maintain its financial stability and ensure agricultural success. (He did not move to the property)~ however, until 1906.) Initially; most of these men were skilled in cutting shingles and logging, with only a basic familiarity with farming. They strove to develop self-sufficient farms growing crops of corn, peas, cotton, and tobacco. Unable to make a positive contribution to the venture, Willie Jones soon sold his interest to Silver. In 1911, James H. Francis became the only new investor in the cooperative. His land included, however, a portion of Willie Jones's former land. Over time, the Francis farm exemplified the self-sufficient goals of the cooperative. Francis was a prosperous farmer, but he did not raise tobacco because he considered it a "gambling crop.:" Financially, the cooperative managed each year to meet the mortgage payments. Applauding its efforts, E. L. Travis, a lawyer in Halifax, actively encouraged and financially aided the community. By 1910 all but three of the seven owned their own farms free of a mortgage. The cooperative cutting of enough timber from the entire tract resolved the final mortgage payment on the Norfleet property, and the surplus was divided equally. In all likelihood, Dudley Jones was involved with the construction of many of the buildings in the area.' The cooperative's dream also included the development of a centralized community near the railroad. In 1914, a portion of the original Norfleet tract located east of the railroad tracks and west of Marsh Swamp was divided among the original investors into eight lots fronting along the tracks. The area was recognized by the name Delmar as early as 1916. In that year, Joe Silver deeded one acre to the Delmar Manufacturing Company, a firm established by trading partners G. J. Scott and A. M. Silver. On November 21, 1917, however, a post office named "Log" was established near the railroad tracks, and Charles Lawler became its first postmaster. Julian T. Moss, John E. Blades, and James B. Garremon followed him before the post office was discontinued on October 15, 1925. This community included a barrel stave mill, a store, a hotel, and several residences:' Joe Silver's concept for his property paralleling the west side of the railroad tracks was out in a plat dated May' 9, 1918. The plan delineated four principal streets and eight blocks.

Lot sizes varied, with the larger ones near the railroad tracks. Streets were named Halifax,

Railroad, Silver, and Main. Over time, however, little development occurred.'

Although Silver's vision for Delmar never materialized, the cooperative tradition of the community was advanced in February 1949 with the formal incorporation of the Delmar Cooperative. Members of the Silver, Scott, and Francis families were principals within the cooperative. Headquartered in Enfield, this organization encouraged more efficient collective buying of farm supplies and selling of farm products."

In recent years the name Delmar has come to represent the rural community associated with the farming cooperative. Many residents are descendants of the area's early investors.

No evidence of the settlement or barrel stave mill remains, however, except for the alignment of the power lines indicating the presence of a former rail siding.

In 1937 Thomas Adickes, a WPA writer, characterized this one-and-a-half-story frame house as the mark of a "very prosperous" farmer. In 1911 James H. Francis joined the cooperative farming consortium of African Americans organized by Joe Silver in 1905. He began building this house in 1924 using materials salvaged from buildings being dismantled in Halifax. He moved here in 1926. By 1937 Francis's farm was virtually self sufficient, providing all food needed except for tea, coffee, and sugar_ According La Adickes, it encompassed two hundred orchard trees, vineyards, vegetable plots that produced three hundred canned goods per year, three hundred chickens, five mules, and modern farm equipment, seemingly the most prosperous of the Delmar farms during the Depression years.

The Francis house takes the form of a gabled bungalow with ells to the front, side, and rear. Exposed rafter ends, simple purlin brackets, three-over-one sash windows, and square posts on brick pedestals supporting a small engaged porch are typical Bungalow elements. The arched window and bands of beveled shingles in the gablefront ell are typically Victorian.

Interior finish, characterized by plaster walls and tongue-and-groove wainscots and ceilings, is standard early twentieth century: However, the - salvaged wainscot in the rear ell has Georgian raised panels.

Through the years the family has made several alterations to the house. In the 1950s asbestos shingles obscured the plain weatherboard sheathing. Also, Francis's son, Eddie Rufus, enclosed the side porch in 1975 and added an attached carport to the opposing side elevation.

The house is situated in a quiet setting at the end of a road . Cultivated fields still provide sustenance for the Francis family and an agricultural setting, though the orchards and early outbuildings were removed.

Notes for James Henry Francis:

JAMES HENRY and PEARL C. FRANCIS A SON'S TRIBUTE

James Henry Francis, and his sister, Ella, were born to Josephine Francis Scott in a Single-parent household During his early childhood and after his mother's marriage to Mr. William Scott, Father James and his sister Ella were sent to live with their grandmother. At this early age, Father was entrusted into the awful responsibility of becoming the man of the household. This meant tilling a small acreage of land with an ox, caring for his ailing grandmother.

Even with an ailing grandmother and a sister to care for, he and his sister attended the public school on a somewhat regular basis, and completed a curriculum that would parallel the eighth grade today. They both joined the church and became supportive members. Upon the death of their grandmother, Aunt Ella married

Generation 4 (con't)

Mr. James Davis, and Father James chose the young lady of his heart, Miss Pearl Martha Ann Clanton whose family background could be seen closely paralleling that of his own. The difference being, her family consisted of four sisters: Aunt Hatty, Mary, Josie, and Sally Ann, and one brother, Jimmy as well as mother, Nancy Roberson. Uncle Jimmy and Aunt Sally Ann became very prosperous landowners in their own right.

-- ::Lately after marriage, Father and Mother launched into two enterprises that proved rather courageous and adventurous. . They invested their somewhat limited resources in a community grocery store, while at the same time began rearing a family. Their merchandizing business prospered to the extent that they were able to enjoy the distinction of owning a horse and a buggy. A rare status symbol to be enjoyed by such a newlywed couple in those days. The skill and determination with which this young couple managed their family business caught the eyes and won the respect of several community leaders and landowners.

VIII. BASIC VALUES

1. I believe each individual was sent to the world for a definite purpose and with a specific talent to share. Therefore, it becomes each person's responsibility to recognize that purpose, discover and develop his talent and to use it to the fullest extent in whatever area of endeavor his ability and opportunity might provide.

2. I believe the life of service through honest and purposeful work ethics is the life that counts and happiness can be achieved when we extend our concern and efforts toward the welfare of others.

Generation 4 (con't)

3. I believe God's richest blessings are in store for those who, first recognize Him and embrace the concept that humility, love, faith, justice and self-respect are prerequisites to one's respect for God and the rights and dignity of his fellowmen.

4. I believe learning is a continuous, life-long process and the most economical and effective source of learning is from those who have withstood the test and challenge of ages before us.

IX. ADVICE TO YOUNGER FAMILY MEMBERS

1. Do recognize and learn of your life purpose, discover and develop your talent and set your goals early in life, because life is too short to waste.

2. Education is extremely important in this age: dig deep, for today and tomorrow's world will certainly demand it.

3. Develop good habits now because your future, your health, your happiness and even your life will be influenced by them.

4. First develop a sense of respect for yourself, and you will in return, learn to respect the dignity and rights of others.

5. Set up your objectives and priorities early in life; pursue them diligently; don't be afraid to think independently; and learn to say "NO" to those who try to change your course.

6. Do not forget, God is the answer. If you recognize and serve him with all your heart, he will direct your path.

"Your task is to build a better world," said God.

And I answered, "How?"

The world is such a large, vast place and oh, so complicated, now

And I am so small and useless,

There is nothing I can do."

But God, in all his wisdom said:

"Just build a better you."

Dear Mr. Francis:

On behalf of the Brunswick Community College Foundation, I want to express our deep appreciation for your generosity in establishing the Annie E. Francis Memorial Endowment Scholarship. This gift of $10,000.00 has been invested, and the income will be used as a scholarship for Brunswick County residents who are handicapped or dependents of a handicapped resident, who are enrolled in a two year degree program, and who maintain a 2.0 average.

We appreciate this endowment and the many ways you support BCC. As a loyal friend, you are making a great contribution to the College, its students, and its programs, Your commitment inspires us to maintain high standards of educational excellence and to seek and reward diversity among our students.

Generation 4 (con't)

We will strive to be worthy of your confidence.

Your long standing active role in education is helping to build a brighter future in Brunswick County. Thank you again for your generous support.

Notes for Copey Roy Francis Sr.:

First child born to James H. and Pearl C. Francis June 26 1910, in Enfield North Carolina.

Educated at McDaniel Elementary School, Weldon High School; Henderson Institute and graduated from Eastman High School. While at Henderson Institute and Weldon High School, he was recognized by his team mates and his competitors as an outstanding Football and Basketball Player.

In 1933, he married the late Victoria Simmons and moved to Newport News Virginia. To this union, two daughters and two sons were born, Marlene, Colandus, Yvonne and Copey Jr.

He was employed by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company as a skilled Welding Chipper for over thirty five years. He took great pride in his work and would often take his family to Open House for Workers' Family Day at the Shipyard, after a ship was finished. One such ship was the "Midway", which at the time it was commissioned, was the largest Aircraft Carrier in the U.S. Navy.

He is an avid reader and likes to keep abreast of the new discoveries involving health, nutrition and medicine. He especially enjoys reading the Bible, attending Church Services and being with his family. In addition to reading, he also likes woodworking and repairing small items. He is good at what he does, best at what he likes to do.

He dislikes crowds, conflicts and complications of any kind.

After retiring in 1975, he returned to Enfield, North Carolina, to be with his widowed mother. When she passed away, he remained there to oversee the Home Place. When his sister, Mattie, and her husband, Norwood, came down to take over in 1989, he was asked to remain with them; and he did.

Notes for Victoria Simmons:

Victoria S. Francis, daughter of the late Anderson and Queen Victoria Simmons was born August 7, 1913 in Halifax County, N.C.

She departed this life Thursday, March 2, 1989 at the home of her daughter in Camden, New Jersey.

She was united in Holy Matrimony to Copey Roy Francis, June, 1933. To this union, four children were born.

She left Halifax County and moved to Newport News, Va., until 1949, then to Philadelphia, Pa. and eventually she settled in Camden, N.J., where she lived and worked until her civil service retirement in 1979 from the Defense Supply Agency in Philadelphia, Pa., where she was employed as a seamstress. After raising and educating her children, she continued her education and earned her high school equivalency diploma in 1970 from the state of Pennsylvania. She then attended Philadelphia Community College where she majored in accounting.

In June 1983 she returned to Scotland Neck, Halifax County, and rejoined White Oak Baptist Church where she was baptized as a child. She remained a faithful member of the church until her death.

She leaves to cherish her loving memory, two daughters, Marlene Francis of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Yvonne Samuels of Camden, N.J.; two sons, Colandus and Copey Roy of Camden, N.J.; a foster brother, William Manly of Willingboro, N.J.; 11 grandchildren; 13 greatgrandchildren; and a host of relatives and friends.

School.

He enjoyed most sports but he especially liked to hunt and play baseball. Unfortunately, an injury to his right shoulder, early in his life, curtailed his participation in any activity that necessitated a throwing motion with his right arm. He did however, continue to hunt whenever possible. (Note: He earned a letter in sports at Henderson Institute.) He joined Daniel Chapel Baptist Church at an early age and the religious training he received there as well as in his home, was the foundation for the philosophy that he lived by all of his life.

At age 23, he married Doris Louise Farrow and moved Washington, D.C .. he held various positions in the private sector of D.C., before accepting an appointment with the United States Department of the Navy. He was assigned to work at the Naval Gun Factory, as a Cartridge Case Maker.

When World War II ended, he left the Gun Factory and began working for the Federal Housing Administration as a clerk. He remained there until his retirement in 1972.

After retiring, he had more time to devote to his Hobby. His dream was to design an efficient Rotary Engine using centrifugal force., He drew hundreds of plans and made several prototypes but, none had the precision necessary to perform the way that he had envisioned. He never gave up trying to improve his designs.

His motto was; " Stay on an even keel and always make decisions based on principles rather than emotions:·

Notes for Tony Delbert Francis:

Delmar Farm is operated and owned by Tony Francis a grandson of James and Pearl Francis. This farm has continued ownership in this family well over 100 years, located in rural eastern North Carolina, between the towns of Enfield and Halifax. Our Goal is to produce the highest quality beef while caring for our animals humanely and with compassion. Our cattle are a Angus and Piedmontese cross raised here on the farm in a stress free environment and are never administered hormone implants. Our animals are raised mostly on their natural diet of grass which has much less fat and supplemented with some grain mix which is good for our hearts and our waistlines. Grass fed beef is higher in CLA (conjugated linoleic acid) and omega -3 fatty acids (better for you) than all grain-fed beef. A good source of beta-carotene, vitamin E, genetically low in cholesterol and more nutritious high in protein. Our weaned calves are finished on high quality forage with a supplemental feeding of cotton by-products , soybeans, hulls and meal. We also actively manage our forest land and grow Soybeans
